PLAN WAR RESERVE FOR REGULAR ARMY

Increase From 60,000 To 250,000 Proposed Scheme Formulated by Department

SMALL SALARIES FOR SOLDIERS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—Plans are under consideration in the war department which may be laid before congress at its next session for increasing the war strength of the army to 250,000 men.

Certain officials of the war department have been working on the plan for several weeks, and now have it in tangible form.

The regular army now consists of 60,000 men with the war strength estimated at 100,000. The new plan involves the creation of a regular reserve, consisting of able bodied discharged soldiers, whose names would be on file in the war department and who would be ready for service at any moment.

The regular reserve would consist of 40,000 men, each of whom would be paid $3 a month. They would be required to furnish their addresses to the war department of any change of same.

Thus an army of 100,000 men with military training could be quickly mobilized.

The plan next includes the creation of a national reserve of 100,000 men. Their names and addresses would be on file in the department, and they would be paid a small sum yearly, probably about $2.

The three forces, the regular reserve, the national reserve and the militia of the various states, estimated at 50,000 by the department, would make the war strength of the army approximately 250,000 men.

LAWYER WHO GAVE UP $100,000 JOB

TO ACCEPT $3,000 JUDGESHIP DEFENDS NEW JERSEY CORPORATIONS.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 25.—"Corporations and trusts come to New Jersey for their charters because New Jersey will give them the kind of charters they want. It is a business proposition. The state does it because there is money in it for the state in the form of fees from the corporations. New Jersey is in business for New Jersey and not for the corporations."

This is the explanation of James B. Dill, millionaire lawyer, noted authority on corporation law and author of "Dill on Corporations," who has recently acquired national fame and prominence by resigning a $100,000 job as a corporation lawyer to accept an appointment as a member of the New Jersey court of appeals at $3,000 a year.

Why did he do it? That is the question lawyers, corporation officials, trust magnates, reformers and newspaper writers in all parts of the United States have been asking themselves and each other ever since the appointment was announced. The answer has not been forthcoming. It has been suggested that he expects as a judge on the bench to exert a larger influence on the laws of his state, possibly with a view of driving from it the more notorious of the soulless combinations of capital. That this theory is not correct is plainly indicated by Mr. Dill's own frank opinion on the corporation laws of New Jersey, expressed to the writer for the purpose of this article.

Mr. Dill, since the announcement of his appointment to the bench, has been absent from his home in New Jersey on a vacation. He has been touring the Pacific coast, accompanied by his wife and three grown daughters. He came to Seattle with a view of visiting Alaska, but changed his mind after reaching here and will remain in Seattle instead. To the writer he has given the first authorized newspaper interview for general use he has permitted to be published since he accepted his judicial appointment. At the request of the interviewer he first touched on the subject of the liberality of the corporation laws of his state.

"New Jersey has been referred to as the home of corporations and trusts," said Judge Dill. "The title is well deserved. With us it is a business proposition. There is money in it for New Jersey. We take the money they offer us in fees and give them the kind of charters they want under which to do business. These fees form our chief source of revenue. In New Jersey we levy no direct taxes, and yet our surplus revenue last year was more than $3,000,000. We have the best country roads in the United States. We have the best schools and public buildings. The money is expended in public improvements."

"Lincoln Steffens has said of New Jersey that she is a traitor state because she sells out the rest of the states by granting charters to corporations which under them prey upon commerce and industry. He has accused us of being selfish. Well, we are selfish. We are not governing New Jersey for the benefit of the rest of the country, nor for the corporations. But we have sold out no state. We grant corporation charters under which they can do business, but we cannot admit them to other states. The other states must do that. Other states must pass their own corporation laws, and if they do not like our corporations they should not admit them."

"Of course, evils will arise under this system, and the proof of it is that evils have arisen. The proper remedy for the correction of these evils is the federal incorporation of all corporations doing an interstate business. State incorporation for state business, national incorporation for national business. I believe I was the original advocate of this remedy. I advocated it first in my Harvard college address of three years ago.

"There is another reason why the trusts come to New Jersey for their charters. It has been pointed out by Steffens in his statement that corporations prefer 'fixed charges.' The charter fees in New Jersey are fixed and payable to the proper state officials. In other states they are uncertain and collected by others in authority or with a 'pull.' Corporations prefer paying a 2 per cent fee to the state of New Jersey rather than to pay a 10 per cent fee to the 'boys' in New York."

PARTICULARS OF EXPLOSION AT STRAWBERRY MINE

The particulars of the fatal explosion which occurred at the Strawberry mine, near Tres Piedras, in the Bromide district, Monday afternoon, in which Richard Cole, who has the contract to sink the shaft one hundred feet, was fatally injured, and Walter Moyer, a workman, was seriously but not fatally hurt, are told by the Tres Piedras Mining Reporter as follows:

It seems that Monday afternoon just a short time before quitting time, the two men above mentioned started to drill with the air drill and in doing so drilled into a charge of giant powder that did not explode the day before, causing an explosion that may result in the death of Cole and the dismemberment of Moyer.

Dr. A. R. Pollock, of Antonio, was telegraphed for and arrived in Tres Piedras about 1 o'clock Monday night, and immediately left for the place of the explosion in company with J. P. Rinker. On arriving at the camp, Dr. Pollock found that Mr. Cole was fatally hurt, being peppered with rocks from his limbs to the top of his head, had his left eye blown out and was badly cut about the face and head. At the pit of the stomach he has a hole as big around as a quarter of a dollar, but this was found to be only a flesh wound. He was brought to Tres Piedras yesterday afternoon and taken to Antonio, Colo., where proper medical attention will be given him.

Moyer was also badly hurt, having been peppered with rock about the body and face, and having a knee cap shattered to pieces. His eyes are badly bruised and swollen, but his eyesight is not destroyed. He will be brought to town in a day or two and sent to Antonio, where an operation on the knee will be performed.

This is the first serious accident that has ever happened in the history of the Bromide district.

CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON

Contagious Blood Poison more thoroughly poisons the blood than any other disease. Every part of the body is affected when the virus becomes entrenched in the circulation, red eruptions break out on the skin, the mouth and throat ulcerate, glands in the neck and groin swell, the hair falls out, copper-colored spots appear on the body, etc.

I was afflicted with blood poison, and the best doctors did me no good, though I took their treatment faithfully. I seemed to get worse all the while. I took almost every so-called blood remedy, but they did not seem to reach the disease, and had no effect whatever. I was despondent, for it seemed that I would never be cured. At the advice of a friend I then took S. S. S. and began to improve. I continued the medicine, and I cured me completely.

So highly contagious is this disease that many a life has been ruined by a friendly hand shake or from using the toilet articles of one affected with the poison. To cure this hideous and hateful disease a constitutional remedy is required. S. S. S. goes down to the very root of the trouble and forces out every particle of the virus from the blood and cures the disease permanently. S. S. S. is purely vegetable and drives out the trouble, root and branch, and no signs of it are ever seen again.

Those who have been cured by S. S. S. can feel assured that none of the poison is left in the blood to transmit to innocent offspring. The entire body is built up and the blood made pure, rich and healthy by this great remedy. Book with instructions for home treatment and any medical advice desired will be given free of charge.
